

Virtue of Winter Grass

By Glenn Currier

The drab day is clothed in gray yellowed grass
lays silently soaking up rain patiently awaiting a distant spring not yet ready to sing its lively green.
Hoping for inspiration
I almost overlooked your present virtue - patience.

"Virtue of Winter Grass," Copyright 2021 by Glenn Currier Written 1-24-21