

Remembering Tomorrow

By Glenn Currier

Today I heard a physicist say we might remember yesterday but as far as we know right now the milk of the old brown cow that has not yet hit the can is beyond the knowing of man.

Einstein says it quite brilliantly stating his general relativity space and time are distorted in black holes sometimes reported by astronomers with their clever eyes directed out from our earthly skies.

Besides - have you ever awakened from a dream of a journey taken with you hurling, tripping, and running from a man you were swiftly shunning?
Now... that dream's not about the past about actions you've already massed.

Awake and alert, the dream is not there in your present... that you are aware but... you wonder if your present sorrow is because you're remembering tomorrow.

"Remembering Tomorrow," Copyright © 2014 by Glenn Currier Written 3-25-14