

Into the Unknown

By Glenn Currier

The doc says Phil needs bypass work real soon his heart is pumping badly and in stress his arteries and veins are not in tune his fear has spiked his life seems in a mess.

The bride still wonders if this guy is right she's seen his moods go dark and sour she listened to his poems of love and light and seen him laugh and play with kids for hours.

Yes Raymond dreamed of serving as a cop he helped the frantic mother to give birth busted dealers brought the vandal to a stop but saw the cruelest wicked and the worst.

When first we rise into the breaking dawn we know not what or where the day will go what challenge waits what pain the day will spawn but worry fear and fretting just bring us low.

The unknown calls us past our faults and shame it pulls us forward to become our best the unknown beckons calling us by name to make the future sing to make it blessed.

"Into the Unknown," Copyright © 2017 by Glenn Currier Written 10-1-17